Thinking Out Loud

The December bulletin of the Council of Alien Relations indicates the council's desire to serve a useful purpose in teaching tolerance.

It follows:

"Let every ma nhonor and love the land of his birth and the race from which he springs and keep their memory green. It is a pious and honorable duty. But let us have done with British Americans and Irish Americans and German Americans and so on, and all be Americans. If a man is going to be an American at all, let him be so without qualifying adjectives; and if he is going to be something else, let him drop the word American from his personal descriptions."—By Henry Cabot Lodge.

The above quotation from Henry Cabot Lodge one of America's great statesmen, provides common ground for the representatives western men and women who have banded together to form the Council of Alien Relations. In this, the first of a series of monthly bulletins, the council takes occasion to identify itself and its objectives.

The people who are lending their names and their support to this new council realize the need or an organization interested in the nation's alien population. Their goal is to build better citizenship and unified loyalty to the United States.

This nation seems destined after the war to participate more widely than ever before in international affairs. Yet, internally she has vast alien groups who have yet to be convinced this country is worthy of their citizenship. There they remain—3,400,000 of them—unnaturalized and unassimilated.

Objectives listed: 1—To encourage, as citizens, naturalization and assimiliation of our alien population.

2—To eliminate through legislation the mask of dual citizenship which serves so often to bind a foreign born resident to his native land.

3—Enemy aliens and other interned persons should not be allowed freedom of movement in coastal defense areas until hostilities cease. And before release from an internment center to any designation, each should be investigated as to loyalty by the federal bureau of investigatoin.

4—Congress should create immediately a committee to study and to recommend proper legislation so that in the post war era the entire relocation problem can be handled with intelligence and in a democratic manner to assure justice for all involved.

5—Enemy aliens and other interned persons who have shown or avowed disloyalty to the United States should be expatriated under special treaty arrangements with their country of origin at the conclusion of the war.

6—Even though most of the persons interned in the interests of war time security come from the Pacific area, citizens throughout the United States should be acquainted with the entire background, history and prewar activities of internees in order to understand the comprehensive national problem involved.

Citizenship a responsibility: From its first day as a nation, the United States has welcomed new blood foreseeing in it strength, vision and aggressiveness. It was taken granted that the new people from abroad would seek citizenship for themselves and their children in exchange for freedom and opportunity.

Every war sends naturalization figures soaring and this is no exception. During the past year more than 435,000 took out papers. Certainly those foreign born who have been looking and working toward the day they become citizens deserve the highest tribute.

But it is a fair question to ask how many were frightened into action by world events which they though might affect their securfiy. Until the war came along, many of these people by their own admissions had gone for 20, 30 or 40 years partaking of American benefits but accepting none of the responsibilities.

The council feels that there should be legislation requiring aliens to become naturalized with in a specified period, possibly 6 years after their arrival in this country or forfeit their right of citizenship. This period should provide ample time for the alien to meet the longuage requirements for naturalization and determine in his own mind whether American citizenship is preferable to his native land.

MADELINE HIMES DIRECTS CLUB IN CORNWALL

The following letter is from Miss Madeline Himes, who enlisted in Red Cross work several months ago. She has spent most of her time in England and writes most interesting and amusing letters to her mother, Mrs. Grace Himes, librarian.

Dear Mother:

I'm writing this from my new assignment—an aeroclub in Cornwall where I have been sent as club director. There is much to tell you since I left Coombe House, out from London.

I waited there for reaassignment and my whole stay there was like a long house party and though I enjoyed it thoroughly I like this better. Coombe House is a rest home for air men.

This is a club for flyers coming back from the front. We meet the incoming flyers with hot coffee, we year battle dress and for twelve and sometimes sixteen hours a day we plan and carry out everything possible that contributes to the comfort and well being of men just back from missions .

The place is well staffed—cooks, maids, an accountant, a manageress myself and assistant.

We have a GI house committee that does the spade work in and around the club and helps plan activities,. At present we are planning a huge Christmas party for everybody but most of it hinges around the fifty orphans we have invited to spend Christmas with us. You should see the boys making toys for them and the PX has already donated money for candy and cookies. The whole club is to be decorated with holly and greens—so I can see a busy time ahead for all of us.

I'll have to admit that I'm powerful homesick these days and this week's mail of Christmas' letters, cards and packages from Grass Valley and Nevada City much as I appreciate them, didn't help matters any.

I must tell you about the trip up from Coombe House by the way Coombe House is an old castle—its a perfectly lovely place now with its woods in autumn—its crisp frosty mornings.

I come up from there in a baggage coach with fourteen air corps officers—the compartments were all taken so we sat on crates and boxes—one had chickens in it. and sang all the way to London. The carryall took us to the train from the house and as we drove through the fields white with frost the boys sang 'Auld Lang Syne' and 'We'll Meet Again. This memory will last through my life. They are all so young—they fly the fighter planes and bombers—it wrings one's heart to think what may be in store for them.

When we reached London V 2's were dropping pretty regularly and they were even less entertaining than the buzz bombs —no warning—just a crash and a mutter like thunder when the sound rolls up the street.

The trip to Cornwall from London is an all day journey and though its cold and draughty on the train and many times there is standing room only—I enjoy every minute of it. A first class ticket means nothing—one takes his chances of a seat with the others.

But one meets all kinds of friendly people—every one carries a lunch, its fun.

Tonight we are giving a carnival party. dancing and concessions as dress for these parties; they are jolly affairs well attended by a very personable group of WACS and WRENS. Our daytime dress is a short jacket and slacks (misnomer over here). The food is delicious and we eat far too much.

BODY OF MAN MISSING SINCE TUESDAY FOUND

The body of B. C. Rourke, 53, who had been missing since Tuesday night, was found yesterday morning about 50 yards from Highway 40, near the outlet to Donner Lake, Coroner Tlvah Hooper, who took charge of the remains, stated that apparently the man had perished of exposure.

Michael Ruane, employed with Rourke, by a contracting firm, reported Rourke missing Tuesday night. He stated that the two men had been drinking and were returning to the contractor's camp when they decided to take a short cut and cross Cold Stream, the outlet to Donner Lake, Ruane was able to cross but Rourke did not follow. Ruane returned to the highway to spread the alarm.

The coroier states that apparently Rourke after entering the stream backed out of the freezing water and started to return to Truckee, but was overcome by the cold before he could reach the highway. His body was found about 70 yards from the stream.

No funeral arrangements have been made. The coroner states that little is known of Rourke, save that he had been employed near Truckee for about three months.

The body was found by Game Warden William LaMarr and State Quarantine Inspector E. H. Renmere.

FARM LABOR IS RELEASED NOW FOR FOUNDRIES

Northern California foundries are hoping to obtain 500 needed workers from the ranks of farm labor during the winter months.

"Registrants in 2-C or 3-C the two agricultural deferment classifications are permitted to transfer to other war work, for a period not to exceed four months, without any change in their classification," it was pointed out today by Arthur J. Grier, regional manager of the WPB production service division. "Such registrants are permitted to move from one locality to another for the purpose provided that at the end of the period they return to their seasonal occupation.

"With agricultural work at its lowest seasonal ebb farm workers are offered ready employment at good wages coupled with an opportunity to serve their country in an industry in critical need of help.

Full information can be had from U. S. employment service offices and clearance can be obtained from local draft boards," said Grier.

PRIZES OFFERED BOY SCOUTS FOR SHIP MODELS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18— To enable more aspiring Boy Scout shipbuilders to compete in a four state victory ship model building contest being sponsored by the women's organizations for the American Merchant Marine, Port of San Francisco the contest deadline—formerly set for Feb. 1, 1945, has been changed to April 1.

"Many of the California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah boys want to compete have already signed up for the work during the Christmas holidays, Mrs. Allan Toole, contest chairman, said today in announcing extension of the deadline. "In addition, construction of a truly fine victory ship model is an exacting, time taking task—a challenge to the inqenuity and skill of any model builder. For those reasons, we have thought it wise to extend the deadline to April 1. Boy Scouts aged 12 to 14 inclusive may compete."

First prize will be a trip to San Francisco and return for the winning boy and his mother, plus $100 expense money. In addition, the first prize winner may designate his mother, sister or some other woman to sponsor a merchant ship at its launching in the San Francisco area on or about April 15, 1945. Second, third, fourth and fifth prizes will be $100, $75, $50, and $25 war bonds, respectively.

The contest will end April 1, 1945 by which date all models must be received by M. A. Cramer, manager, San Francisco Marine Exchange, 465 California St., San Francisco. At the conclusion of the contest, all models entered will be on public display at the Marine Exchange.

Complete contest rules and directions are obtainable from scout masters throughout the four states comprising Region 12, Boy Scouts of America.

Timber Cut In National Forests Up 2.9 Percent

During the year ending June 30, 1944, timber cut on the 17 national forests in California increased 29 per cent over the previous twelve months, according to the United States forest service. The total cut was 511,190,000 board feet valued at $1,615,947.

Heaviest producers of saw timber in this state were the Lassen and Plumas national forests in northern California. The largest numbers of Christmas trees were cut on the Stanislaus and Tahoe forests. The Trinity forest led in the production of ship fenders, war time wood substitutes for hemp bumpers on tugs and other craft.

Miscellaneous forest products sold on the national forests included tree cones, leaf mold, yucca stalks, decorative trees, manzanita sprays and sage.

HELEN CHAPMAN NOW NEAR DUTCH BATTLE FRONT

The following letter was received by Dr. C. W. Chapman from his daughter Miss Helen Chapman with the American Red Cross in Holland.

Holland, Nov. 24, 1944.

Dear Poppy:

I arrived at my new base today, another girl and I. Her name is Jean Rayl. We were given a warm welcome by the group here, and we are living in a very good quarters, a hotel. I am now lying on a very soft bed in a steam heated room. We, also, have hot and cold running water. Jean is in the same room. an a canvas cot upon which she has her sleeping bag. That is a comfortable arrangement, too. Our only inconvenience is that we have no closet or wardrobe for our clothes, so we will have to live out of our dufflebags.

We have our meals down stairs in a combinatoin dining room and living room. All of the girls here have been very nice to us.

Jean was married to a boy who was killed in Sicily. She says he was in the 30th. Regiment at San Francisco when Buzz was in it. Her husband went over with the 30th. The original is non-existent.

I have been assigned for a while to the Clubmobile "Golden West'". That is fitting and proper of course. My group is attached to the 19th Army Corps. That is all I am allowed to tell you; but that will leave something for your imagination to work on. I have an exceptionally good assignment.

My address is different again; but mail sent to the address 887 will always reach me. That is a headquarters address. The new one is a field address. Both can be used; but the new one may get me sooner unless I get changed around a lot, in which case the 887 is surer. I am supposed to be here on permanent assignment.

My trip from Paris was pretty rugged because of the rain. But it was very very interesting. I wish I could tell you all about it, but that is forbidden. I will say that I had a very good Thanksgiving. We thought that we would miss turkey and have nothing but bumps, dirt and rain. But we had noon dinner with an M. P. company in Belgium. They had turkey with all the trimmings, mashed potatoes, gravy, peas, rolls, coffee, stuffing, cranberry sauce, apple and raisin pie; and they even produced some wine.

At the evening meal we were in another place and had cold turkey. We were at an officer's club rather close to the front, but they had everything. I would have thought I was in a New York club, except I knew I wasn't.

I have seen Aachen, or rather, what rubble is left. As we passed through the streets we looked for one whole building, but there wasn't one.

I have now been in seven countries since I arrived in the European theatre of operions. Later I'll be able to tell you specifically which ones.

Today I got my rations. We get more here than in Paris. I still think Paris is wonderful. I still receive no mail, and I am very worried about you. You write letters so much usually, and I have received very few since I have been overseas. I did get a letter from Buzz when I was in Paris saying he heard from you, so that is some help. I hope the trouble is with mail delivery and not with you.

Tell Maxine, this letter is for her, too because it takes time to repeat long letters.

Take care of yourself, and be careful.

Your loving daughter, Helen.

If men in a community wish to do a real job for boys in giving leadership to boys through cubbing, 9 to 12, scouting 12 to 15, or senior scouting, 15 or older, please contact the scout office Auburn. the district commissioner or someone already interested in the movement.

SMOKE GETS IN OUR EYES

The hottest issue in America, at the moment, seems to be the cigaret shortage. What happened to Hitler, how congress and the president will finally reconcile their differences on the social security tax, whether Germany can survice the winter, when MacArthur will be able to march on Manila, tbe shortage of ammunition on the western front and the serious implications of the crisis in Greece—all these questions appear to have become suddenly secondary to whether the corner tobacco shop will have a new supply of cigarettes today.

On the Bowery in New York, the press wires report that an unidentified man whipped out a gun and fatally shot another man who had asked him for a cigaret. Locally, no murders have been reported as a result of the mad scramble for a smoke, but no one can deny that the cigaret crisis has supplanted the weather as the topic of the hour. Even Santa Claus has been crowded into the background as otherwise respectable citizens threaten to trample each other under foot in the frenzied search for a fag.

At the risk of being considered an unsympahetic wretch, or being suspected of having a hoard of cigarets hidden out in the press room, we think it is time someone sounded a warning that we are letting smoke get in our eyes. We remember at the start of the war that some of the ladies thought they wouldn't have a leg to stand on when the supply of silk and nylon gave out, but somehow we can't recall any divorces directly attributable to the stocking shortage. Perhaps it's time to pause between puffs and ponder the fate of the nation. That would not only conserve tobacco; it might give us better perspective—and some inventive genius might even bob up with a cure for the cigaret shortage.—Contributed.

"NOT ONE DOLLAR FOR TRIBUTE"

Whether one agrees or disagrees with Cecil B. DeMille in his espousal of the so-called "right to work" amendment, which was decisively defeated at the November election, no American who believes in popular government can question his right to take any position on the measure which squared with his conscience.

By the same reasoning it follows that DeMille was well within his rights, as an American citizen, when he refused to pay a $1 assessment levied by the American Federation of Radio Artists to oppose the measure that he was supporting. Whether he was within his union rights in so doing is a matter that will have to be decided in the courts, but that raises the question of which takes precedence in this country—a union assessment or the United States Constitution.—Contributed.

PROSPERITY CAN BE ACHIEVED IN POST WAR ERA

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Whether America turns its tremendous resources and energies into full scale production for peace time needs when the war ends and is able, thereby, to escape a new plunge into depression and widespread unemployment will depend in large part, not on government financing and pump priming, but on whether huge reservoirs of the people's savings, now lying dormant in the nation's banks, can be channeled into profitable, productive enterprises.

The story of America's stored up wealth—in record breaking bank deposits, in war bonds and other cash assets—has not made headlines, but it is one of the most reassuring phases of the post war picture, providing of course, the people have sufficient confidence in the future of private enterprise to risk their savings in launching new businesses or expanding their present operations.

Instead of a government spending program to provide jobs for returning service men and men and women now engaged in warwork, the nation's hope for the future lies in a people's spending program — not a wild unrestrained spending spree, which would play havoc with the country's economy, but an orderly, intelligent investment program to put idle dollars to work in stable enterprises.

E. F. Goldenwiser of the federal reserve, the dean of government economists, told bankers recently that 'the unprecedented rise in bank deposits" would reach between $125,000,000,000 and $150,000,000,000 by the end of the war. Already bank deposits which are rising at the rate of $200,000,000 a week, have reached the amazing total of 110 billion dollars with another 20 billion dollars in cash held outside banks.

That present total of 130 billion dollars in stored cash represents two and a half times as much as the American people had in the big boom year of 1929.

Nor is that all the story. In addition to that huge cash reserve, the people of the nation have more than 34 billion dollars invested in war bonds.

While the nation's war expenditures to date have reached the staggering sum of 210 billion dollars, it is a phenomenal and highly significent fact that the people's cash reserves—in bank deposits and war bonds—have mounted to 104 billions or within sight of the total thus far of our all out global conflict.

The United States government will end the war with a tremendous load of debt—and certainly in no position to pyramid that dangerous indebtedness by new borrowings for pump priming and make work jobs.

But the American people will end the war with cash reserves such as this nation never has known—and will have in their own hands, or their own bank accounts, the resources with which to work out their own salvation.

There are two great obstacles to be overcome however, if this country is to create an abundant economy for its people in the pots war years.

Part of the problem lies with the people themselves. The people must learn to spend with restraint and to invest wisely—and must guard against the temptation to dissipate their savings. The decadent spend ourselves rich doctrine which was preached by false prophets during the latter years of the depressoin must never again be allowed to become a principle of our national life. For that is the principle of a nation in decline and a people who have los their moorings.

The other phase of the problem lies in the attitude of the federal government tow ard agriculture and business and industry. Hoarded money puts no men to work, but whether the people hoard their money or invest it in productive enterprises will depend, to large extent, on the attitude of the government toward our free enterprise system.

The presidential election is over now—and it is vitally important that government and the people pull together for their common good. When America went to war, certain government officials who had spent the time berating business and industry quickly changed their tune and appealed to the very system they had warred on relentlessly to come to the nation's rescue. It is to be hoped that such past mistakes are behind us and need not be repeated, for winning the peace, in many respects may be even more difficult than winning the war.

Government cant save this nation from the calamity of depression and panic when war industries shut down, but the people—and the people's resources—can, if the people have confidence in the essential fairness of their government leaders. Roosevelt said shortly before election that he believes wholeheartedly in private enterprise system. We hope his associates in Washington took that statement seriously, as the American people did, and will see that it is put into practice. For private enterprise and individual initiative—backed by the people's faith and the people's cash—can build a stable prosperous America, when the war is done.

VAST GALLONAGE IMPOUNDED BY SHASTA DAM

More than 1,283,000 acre feet of water is impounded back of Shasta Dam, officials of the bureau of reclamation announced today in Sacramento. This is the greatest amount of water contained in Shasta Lake since storage began on January 1, 1944. An acre foot of water is enough to cover one acre of ground one foot deep; one acre foot contains 325,850 gallons.

Since September 26, when the water surface reached its lowest elevation during the current season, an average of 4,800 acre feet per day have been added to the lake. In terms of a city water supply, sufficient water is stored in Shasta Lake each day to supply an average city of 100,000 population for five months. At the prsent time the lake is 325 feet deep at the upstream face of Shasta Dam.

Storage at Shasta Lake during the late winter and spring months of 1944 made it possible to generate 255 million kilowatt hours of electric power and energy to supply from storage Sacramento Valley irrigators during the past summer with 258,000 acre feet of water which otherwise would have been lost into the ocean. Late summer and fall releases retarded the encroachment of sea water and therefore held salinity in the upper Delta channels to a safe minimum.

Daily gains in storage at Shasta Dam within recent weeks has ranged from a low of 2000 acre feet on November 28 to a high of 32,000 acre feet on December 2. The maximum short period gain occurred between December 1 and December 7 when 100,000 acre feet were stored.

Millerton Lake on the San Joaquin river 20 miles north of Fresno, also in operation during the 1944 season contains 173,000 acre feet, a gain of 68,000 acre feet since October 25, the date the U. S. bureau of reclamation began recovering storage after the heavy releases for irrigation during the summer and early fall months.

The combined storage of Central Valley Project reservoirs on December 13 amounts to 1,470,000 acre-feet or 480.000 million gallons, which is sufficient water to furnish a city the size of San Francisco with its entire supply for approximately 17 years.

Colonel R. C. Hunter, Sacramento district engineer of the United States army engineers, announces the award of a contract to Reliable Elevator Works of Sacramento in the amount of $21,717 for the installation of a nurses' call system at De Witt General Hospital in Placer county. Work is scheduled to start at once.

9—A project for the improvement of flood control on the Calaveras river and Littlejohn creek at an estimated cost of $3,868,000.

In commenting on this legislation Col. R. C. Hunter, Sacramento district engineer, stated that although the corps of engineers has now received the approval of both houses of congress on its plans for this work, this legislation still requires the signature of the president before becoming law.

JOHN HAMMILL RETIRED COUNTY OFFICIAL PASSES

The last rites will be said tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chapel of Hooper and Weaver Mortuary for the late John M. Hammill, former assessor of Nevada County. Death came early Saturday morning at his home, 503 West Main street, as a result of a heart attack. Rev. Frank Buck of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church will officiate. Interment will be in the Greenwood Cemetery.

Hammill spent 44 years in public office, first as clerk in the assessor's office in 1898. He was appointed assessor by the board of upervisors on the death of Henry Schroeder in 1908 and elected in 1930. He served three terms and in 1942 retired because of ill health.

The deceased was the son of the late James and Honor Hammill who migrated from England to Grass Valley and in later years built a residence on the Tahoe Ukiah Highway opposite the tract now owned by the Nevada County Golf Club. It was there that John Hammill was born 71 years ago. He attended the Eureka school where now Hills Flat stands, and graduated from high school. He held several clerical posts before entering the assessor's office.

He had been a member of Quartz Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, for 50 years, and was a life member of the Grass Valley Elks Lodge.

Surviving him are his wife Mrs. Nellie Hammill, his son, Malcolm Hammill, superintendent of Errol MacBoyle's ranch properties, and crandchildren, James C. Hammill and Sylvia Jean Hammill.

Among his ahievements were devices for saving time and labor in the assessor's office, some of which were apodted and recommended by the state board of equalization for other county offices. His span of life covered the trtnsition from the old hand written assessment rolls, bound in huge stiff volumes, to the present loose leaf and typed pages. He often recalled writing by hand one mining description, which, when completed, covered tight feet of manuscript.

LELAND SMITH RETIRES FROM FOREST SERVICE

Leland S. Smith, associate forester on the Tahoe national forest retired from active duty December 14 completing approximately 40 years of governmental service. This announcement was made by Tahoe forest supervisor Guerdan Ellis. Smith's official life has covered numerous activities and much traveling, states Ellis. In 1914 Smith accepted appointment as an assistant ranger on the Tahoe national forest. In 1917 he transferred to the Modoc national forest to fill the position of forest ranger. While on the Modoc, Smith was detailed to Washington, on special assignment during the winter of 1923. Transferring back to the Tahoe national forest in 1925 Smith assumed the duties of range examiner in charge of grazing activities.

Early in the last decade Smith started pioneer activities in winter sports in the Tahoe-Donner area which developed to where tens of thousands used the snowfield playgrounds annually prior to war time travel restrictions. In 1937 and 1938 completed a twelve county ranch and range survey for the department of agriculture Triple A program. Elevation to the position of associate forester came in 1938. Smith's grazing activities and conscientious efforts to better the livestock industry has won him scores of friends in western Nevada and superior California.

In conclusion Ellis points out the very interesting career of Smith prior to commencing his forestry career. Leaving school at an early age to enter the army and the Spanish-American war, Smith saw action in the Philippine Islands in 1898. 1902 found Smith in China with the American army signal corps in the Chinese Boxer rebellion. Upon discharge from the army in 1902 Smith travelled in all of the principle countries of Europe, thence to China, Japan, Siberia, India and the Malay States. Travelling by bicycle on land Smith gathered wide knowledge of the lands and people visited Returning to the United States he accepted appointment with the dapertment of the Interior to the Philpines where he served eight years with the insular service. Completing his education at George Washington University in Washington, and the University of California, Smith was prepared for his forestry career.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were feted at a farewell party Saturday night at the Elks home in Nevada City by forest service personnel and friends. The Smiths will continue residence in the Nevada City home. They have sons in the service and a daughter in Southern California.

Results of the experiment showed that the sheep produced more clean wool per fleece, 6.8 per cent less shrinkage, 13.5 per cent less dirt content and a staple measuring a full half inch longer than the control group of lambs not wearing the jackets.
